GRAIN TANGLE IS WORST FOUND IN BUSINESS

Perry Smith Failure in Kansas City Leaves An Elevator Full of Wheat That Cannot Be Touched By Owners.

Kansas City, Mo., March 28.—Attorneys representing the various claimants to grain in the big Missouri-Kansas elevator here, filed up a suit of the failure of Perry C. Smith and company, are in conference here trying to effect some arrangement whereby the grain can be released pending a hearing of the case, but as yet no such arrangement has been made.

A tangle without precedent.

The grain tangle of business affairs is unusual in that it has been known by men of the world and business experience on the board of trade. Members who have shipped millions of bushels of grain yearly all over the United States and to many foreign countries, in a business career extending through twenty years or more, who thought they had met with all possible experiences in the grain trade, say that no such entanglement ever before came under their observation.

No one knows just what happened or how it happened. This much is known. Two Kansas City banks and numerous country banks loaned money amounting about one thousand million dollars on the notes of the Perry C. Smith grain company, secured by receipts to incoming grain in Missouri-Kansas elevators. Now, these banks and themselves in possession of a receipt for the contents of the elevator contents to wheat belonging to the Perry C. Smith Grain company, and the banks are now desirous of getting control of the grain in the elevator belonging to men who are in no way connected with the Perry C. Smith company, and were returned to find themselves tangled up in the affair.

No Illegal Receipts Issued.

With all this mix-up, the chief of the Missouri inspection bureau claims that there have been no illegal receipts illegally issued and no grain shipped out of the elevator without the formal acknowledgment of receipts representing such grain.

Was there ever such an entanglement?

Apparently the only persons who know just how it happened are Perry C. Smith and the superintendent and men of the elevator company, and the world does not know.

What the Missouri Inspector Says.
